THE RENAISSANCE OF ISLAMIC BOARDING SCHOOL
(Philosophical Views to Direction Universalization of Islamic Values)

Triyo Supriyatno
triyos.70@gmail.com
FITK UIN Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang

ABSTRACT

Islamic Boarding School (IBS) as one of the religious schooling system in Indonesia that are hundreds of years still showed its existence until now. Although IBS faces various problems when they have to come into contact with the concerns of globalization and some people still suspect an IBS schooling system is deliberated conservative, forbidden democracy until the issue of religious terrorism. Excitingly, all negative image from the outside of community to the IBS, responded peaceably by the IBS community. Even, IBS in this globalization era, was trying to discover again philosophically all of its values to be associated with the needs of surfacing society, in addition also reformulate the system of it schooling which is considered less humane. Movements that brought IBS instead revolved towards such a discourse by many events, by carrying subjects linked to the life of contemporary society such as pluralism, humanism, gender and human rights. IBS and the society must be able to educate the younger generation, can sustain a values for harmony, justice and prosperity towards a gracious life and better in the current or the coming.

Keywords: Renaissance, IBS, globalization, universal values

INTRODUCTION

Education enlightens people on culture and values. Islam has its own attitude towards education that education is the instrument by which people can be trained in the Islamic way of life. It aims at producing human resources following the Islamic teachings especially spirituality and morality. The target can be materialized through the different channels of education, i.e., formal, non-formal and informal. So, Islamic education in the informal process is not negligible and its role deserves to be considered significant comparing with that of formal Islamic education.

We observe that while formal Islamic education is imparted, teachers and institutes are engaged and the methodology is applied, but no technique is usually applied for presenting Islamic teachings though in society a great number of people with their missionary zeal are dedicated to imparting these in the informal way. However, these people have the opportunities to apply the teaching methodology and technique to carry out their noble duties effectively. Considering this, the paper emphasizes the status of the role players of informal Islamic education, methodologies and techniques and the certain aspects of this process of teaching to be followed by them for developing human resource that surely can play an important role to build a healthy environment in society.

Of course, for this resolution, in addition to IBS should strengthen the scientific base into each specialization should also be able to modernize and adapt to the demands of globalization, without having to be hostile to it. The step of IBS like this, of course, should be coupled with the increasing openness of the system are considered to support the IBS change without losing its identity (thinks globally act locally), to borrow a phrase Bruner (2004). That is, IBS need to respond creatively to any changes that occur amid symptoms of modernization and globalization in all aspects of life, but IBS must remain grounded/underlies the character and nature of its behavior on its own traditions of indigenous values.

Relevant to the issue, IBS should immediately undertake Renaissance efforts in order to be able to realize every goal and addressing the needs of the global. Of course, the religion of Islam as a source of knowledge (epistimology) at the IBS, must be approached critically and rationally. All of this with interest, that the science of Islamic education in IBS can be used as a tool to conduct research on issues of Islam and religious education are needed to address global needs. With the ability to research and scientific reasoning based on philosophic reflection, in which the science of Islamic education in IBS with borrowing the term of Noeng Muhadjir, needs to be based social philosophy and social ethic (Muhadjir, 2004: 21). With a goal of keeping religion taught at the IBS will always fresh and up to date as well as to avoid his death bells, because "religion" is taught at the school will always be able to give proper reasons for future generations by giving attention to the challenges of morality and ethics which inevitably arise in connection with social change.

With so science at the IBS can no longer simply claimed by the expressions "rhetoric" as the science which is based on the final and perfect religion. But IBS have been required to be able to prove it through the elaboration of the basic concepts that can provide a strong foundation for the development of a more humane life, peaceful and prosperous. For IBS renaissance of science education in the perspective of reconstruction means rebuilding an Islamic form of science education at the IBS as a whole and detail. In addition, IBS need to be re-developed roles and functions, not limited to "schooling", but became a seeding throughout the talents and interests of the students, so they can become independent human figure, intelligent and dignified. Because the flow of reconstruction as described by Gerald Lee Gutek (1974 :174 ) is more informal education and demonstrate the process of enculturation of the total. While IBS viewed as a social agent assigned to bring the students in the group life through planting for certain skills, knowledge and values of society.

The Shifting Paradigm and Scientific in IBS

IBS in Indonesia as an Islamic educational system certainly has a number of goals, environment, media and infrastructure, students and teachers, teaching methods and curriculum that is characteristic and distinctive, and usually separate with any Islamic education system. Abdurrahman Wahid (2001: 2) called this phenomenon that IBS as a subculture, because it is considered as an institution that deviate from the pattern of life in general. Character scholarly tradition that developed in IBS oriented tasawwuf and deepening science of jurisprudence through the mastery of the tools help him (Wahid, 2001: 169).

Van den Berg, as shown by Martin van Bruinessen, never regretted the loss of the classical intellectual traditions in IBS, because many IBS, like modern or traditional are studying fiqh while ushul fiqh books instead rarely found even philosophy and metaphysics has disappeared in IBS (Bruinessen, 1995: 29-30). Curriculum which tend to be oriented afterlife, is also poorly supported by the media or learning methods that hone critical thinking for the students. As a result of the education system at the IBS such as this, it’s not wrong if the external community of IBS often identify IBS as a conservative institution, closed and unchanged.

Narrow paradigm, exclusive, plus a number of science is taught at the IBS as describe above really has brought a number of underdevelopment, poverty and stupidity for pesantren community. Nurcholish Madjid, when launching a book called "bilik-bilik pesantren sebuah potret perjalanan" (the chambers of IBS a traveling portrait), has given warning to the IBS that stodgy and conservative attitude is a serious obstacle to the IBS qualifications in addressing the challenges of modern life (Majid, 1997: 88). Even the description of this paradigm can also cause the wrong perspective, especially from one outside person when looking at IBS /Islamic education in general, as JM Halstead for example, that consider Islamic education more emphasis on strengthening the faith, the exclusion of rationality, and does not encourage students to think critically (JM Halstead. 519 2004, Rayan, 2012). Therefore, this paradigm has led to the IBS less able to accelerate with the development is going on and not able to take part in the revival of human civilization in the post-industrial era. Even the most miserable, they become a burden to the rise of human civilization and has always been the object of historical development (Wahid, 2007: 13). Though the actual paradigm of Islamic education is very open and in the historical reality, as shown by Sobhi (2004: 150), Islamic education is very much encourage critical thinking as a method to develop science research as has been done by the thinkers and Muslim scholars.

Nevertheless, there is an interesting and exciting phenomenon in the history of the dynamic development of IBS when should align and respond to developments and according to experts, IBS in this context, usually taking strategies/ways to modernize the education system. This phenomenon occurs according Azyumardi Azra first time in the second half of the 19th century, which was introduced by the Dutch colonial government to establish volkschoolen, folk school, or school villages (nagari) and in turn can affect the system of Islamic education. Only in the early 20th century, there is awareness of the Muslim community itself through Muslim reformist movement calling for reform of Islamic education system in responding to any form of challenge (Madjid, 1997). The reform movements, it has inspired the later Muslim generations, even in recent decades, due in Indonesian IBS (especially the mainstream of IBS and have Aswaja ideology ) has shown his identity as an open educational institutions and the approach used it is sufficient for responds to the times and sociological implications of industrial society as well as the scientific approaches in IBS already are cultural acceptance (Haedari, et al, 2005: 77). The scientific paradigm that developed by IBS is more shalihun likulli zaman and more explore the universality of the teachings of Islam and trying to answer their relevance to contemporary developments.
Islam as a religion that is taught at the IBS in this perspective, has seen have a number of teaching that should be interpreted in the context of space and time that concrete and universal truth of Islam that it should always be able to answer, respond and in language Nurcholish Madjid, need to be harmonized and discussed with relevant and particular situation (1997: 39). Jurisprudence which has seen something normative-dogmative, for example, should be dialogue and respond to real life of people, or as initiated by Kiai Sahal with Social Fiqh concept by referring to the five basic principles, namely: 1) the interpretation of texts contextually jurisprudence; 2) changes in patterns of mazhab (the school perspective) from qauly (textual) to manhaji (methodological); 3) verification where the fundamental teachings of ushul and the branches (furuz); 4) jurisprudence presented as social ethics, not a state of positive law; and 5) the introduction of philosophical thought, especially in the social and cultural issues (Asmani, 2007: xii). The paradigm like this enable the birth of generation of intelligent, critical and able to perform any form of innovation that is new and fresh to remain aware of and understand where something should be changed and which ones should not be developed. Of course the change in question is limited to developing the thinking at the IBS that contribute to human values such as human rights, pluralism, social justice, and democracy.

Universalization Islamic Values in IBS

There are research results that indicate there is a shifting paradigm of IBS in the present era by using the approach of normativity and historicity as well. With both of these approaches, many pesantren have realized the importance of showing the sides of humanity (al-insaniyyah) at the instigation of the principle teachings of Islam itself once the character of openness civilization Muslims who are able to adopt and adapt all kinds of cultural manifestations and scientific insights that come from other civilizations (Wahid, 2007).

Ronald L. Bull research results which uses ethnographic approach on three boarding schools in East Java that is IBS Tebuireng, IBS An-Nur and IBS Al - Hikam and then recorded with the title Teaching Morality: Javanese Islamic Education In A Globalizing Era (2000), have demonstrated the truth of universalization of Islamic values in the IBS. For the IBS as an institution has played the role of social and cultural development as well. Although as a traditional institution, the IBS was Able synergism with the demands of modernity and establish its identity as part of the Indonesian Muslim community and a nation of Indonesia itself. In line with the research results of John Bull is Slamet Purwadi and Muhammad Ferry Siregar titled Socio-Cultural Functions of IBS in Dealing With Modernity (2010). By looking at the case of IBS Tebuireng, he is highlighting the role of IBS as a means of social transformation.

The research findings of Bull, Purwadi, and Siregar on the modernity of socio-cultural functions of the IBS is not surprising, if you look at previous studies such as Zamakhshari Dhofier through his research titled “IBS Tradition: Studies on Kiai Worldview” (Tradisi Pesantren: Studi tentang Pandangan Hidup Kyai) (1994). Through the epistemic standpoint, Dhofier successfully demonstrated creativity in response to the change while relying on classical scientific tradition.

Straight Mastuhu also reinforce Zamakhshari Dhofier research findings with the title “The Dynamics of IBS Education System Review About Elements and Values Education System of IBS” (Dinamika Sistem Pendidikan Pesantren Suatu Kajian Tentang Unsur dan Nilai Sistem Pendidikan Pesantren, 1994). Among several IBS studied, Mastuhu shows that IBS Tebuireng is still retain identity in fending off boarding the impact of modernization. Have the courage to make contact at the same time open to other systems outside of itself and the impact on joints laying renewal of thought in Islam.

It’s nothing wrong recently, Marzuki, et.al. (2010) with the study on titled the Changes Typology and Multicultural Education Model of Salaf Pesantren (Tipologi Perubahan dan Model Pendidikan Multikultural Pesantren Salaf), categorizes that Pesantren Tebuireng in Jombang, Al-Qadir Cangkringan, Dar al-Tauhid in Cirebon, Raudlatuth Thalibin Rembang Apex as boarding an inclusive and multicultural sound. This study describes the problems does more to change the model of the four IBS Salaf models towards a mix of traditional and modern. But the shift of the pattern, they are at once highlights the multicultural values developed in it. Meanwhile the reasearch about IBS and it result is strengthen the role of pesantren as the researcher has been described above, both written in the form of a journal article or the results of a study are writings by Ronald Lukens-Bull's The Traditions of Pluralism, Accommodation, and Anti-Radicalism in the IBS Community"(2008). Mun”im Sirri writes under the title "The Public Expression of Traditional Islam: the Islamic School and Civil Society in Post-Suharto Indonesia (2010).

IBS and Social Transformation Construction: A Historical Facts

Speak to the need for IBS displays cosmopolitan character as it is actually not a new case. Because if scrutinized, IBS have a very close relationship and not contrary to the values of modernization. Even as a result of research, there is a relationship between IBS and the modernization of social in Indonesia. Despite as the traditional IBS, It’s in Indonesia recognized as local wisdom derived from religious faith and embraced these values are taught/practiced directly by the founders of it. Where is the dialectical relationship between the two, i.e. between religion on one side and the values that grow out of IBS, and does not appear as confrontational, but a harmonious and accommodating? Pattern of such relationships, proven successful this IBS bring success until now and create a special identity and contribute to the development of modernity—teach the values are aligned with the needs of modernization, such as love, respect from differences realities and democratic values. An interesting pattern of relationships and distinguish a pattern that tends to radical Islamic movement and proved to have an impact for the poor imaging of the Islamic world in particular and Islam in general face.

In the portrait of Indonesian IBS history, IBS has given inspiration to other institutions in Indonesia and to contribute to national development. Particularly in terms of its success in being inclusive IBS, when having to make contact with globalization. Where Tebuireng, as has been shown by Zamakhsari Dhofer through his research (1994: 122), has brought a message of change and new ideas. The changes have made Tebuireng so critically and do not let it go with the flow of change and the changes have made it is still base on the long-established tradition and firmly rooted in the community/traditional Islam.

IBS have performed as a missionary and community agencies. IBS over the years, according to Robert Cambers convinced by some people have local resources, local social capital once located in the effort to build the community "from the back". Some IBS, kiai (the leader of IBS), and rural communities have three exchange relationships connected to each other, a relationship that is very strategic, intensive, and runs from time to time (Solomon in Oepen & Karcher, 2010: 8-9 ). Even the existence of boarding, as entry Nashihin M. Hasan, has for centuries followed coloring society, especially in the countryside and the character as an institution that is always surrounded by a culture of religious and cultural transformation serves as a comprehensive tool in the life of society (Oepen & Karcher, 1988: 109-110). Because of the important role of IBS through kiai, able to teach religious knowledge and as a role model (uswah hasanah) for the student (santri) and society as well as a search for information is growing in the middle of society. In this case, the pesantren can play a role as a catalyst for community development and dynamist; not only in the religious field but also in the social, economic and cultural.

Agrees with Hasan, Soetjipto Wirosardjono excuse that IBS viewed as cultural transformation, namely: IBS was be looked as a institution that can be bring the community into the sphere of influence of the resources and the moral norms of infinite (Oepen & Karcher, 1988:82). IBSCulture that is very unique and well-known medium with patterns of life and survival, able to provide the patterns and forms of life in the ever-growing community. Even IBS culture that organizes behavior and layout of a relationship between one society to another despite different religion, culture, and ethnicity.

In Indonesia, IBS also known as moral guardians and defenders of ideology Pancasila tough? Through a socio-religious organization of NU, where the IBS, kiai assembly and association, according to Abdurrahman Wahid, who became known as Gus Dur when giving the foreword book by a pastor named Einar Martahan Sitompul (1989: 11)-in Banjarmasin conference in 1936, NU (through the presence of KHA Wahid Hasyim, KH Masykur, and Zainul Arifin ) never determine a firm stance related to Indonesia's status as the nation's land and the homeland, which must be maintained from outside attacks.

In 1945, NU also accept and express Pancasila and UUD 1945 (the 1945 Constitution) the principle of Pancasila relation to this, although NU as traditional Islamic organization emerged as the first religious organization to accept (Mufid , 2006: 61). This means that the scholars of IBS could not agree with the establishment of Pancasila state, a state which had received sympathetic view Fazlur Rahman because it is considered as the interpretation of Islam to Indonesia, which fits with the culture and people of Indonesia. Because the Pancasila state of religious tolerance that enable to develop the idea of religious (Bruinessen 2011: 3).

Even in the middle of the public discussion over the issue of IBS as a hotbed of terrorists, precisely Mun'im Sirry through his article titled "The Public Expression of Traditional Islam: The IBS and Civil Society in Post-Suharto Indonesia, have demonstrated the contribution boarding schools in shaping civil society and democratization Indonesian society, through their roles in amplifying the themes of freedom and equality. Although the type and character characteristic as traditional institutions, IBS is not mean that conflict with the values of modernity. Modern does not mean only Western values only, but is compatible with the ideals of IBS (Sirri, 2010: 60). About these issues, then illustrates IBS should be as the result of research Robert N. Bellah (1992 : xiii ) of the Tokugawa Religion. According to him, the cultural roots of the Tokugawa Religion has prepared the Japanese people to be able to live the demands of modernism. IBS worth compared with the Tokugawa Religion, as IBS in Indonesia seem to have the values and teachings.
are very relevant to globalization. Because IBS in addition to advocating uniformity of culture and belief in equality (egalitarianism), also prepare the community with an emphasis on group loyalty (Ukhuwwah Islamiyah) and the achievement of individual and collective.

The Constructing Tolerance Character to IBS Students

Construction a generation with a character based on inclusive openness and humanism, is not easy, especially concerning a conviction and principle (Aqidah). The main thing that should be studied for this purpose by Franz Magnis Suseno is being to be tolerant of other people. Tolerance to sincerely accept the existence of others as a distinct community. Can see the others in a positive and cooperative contact/ (silaturrahmi) with religious leaders (Wasim, 2004: 17). After building interreligious dialogue, according to Faisal Ismail (2003: 154), as an initial step further foster inclusive attitudes need to be developed and empowered through cooperation in the social movements of religious inter-agency can provide benefits for the good and prosperity of the nation's life.

Additionally, all these steps must be bound by a sense of belief that spirituality can always generate and realize the importance of valuing diversity and open minded. That is, with a sense of spirituality, as a discourse of Asghar Ali Engineer (2004), which is sensed in the form of actions that can lead to human kindness. Spirituality which is actually located in the human service and service to all His creation, such as protecting the environment from any damage, sensitive to the suffering of others and against any form of injustice. Not in the form of spirituality which is often indicated by the fundamentalism that seem dogmatic, and fanatical sectarianism, which could endanger their own religion. A person can be called truly like religion is when the person is always respected the beliefs of others, will never incite hatred or disrespect towards other people's beliefs.

While Abdurrahman Wahid have been donation a variety of strategies that can be used for this purpose are: (1) socio-political strategy; (2) through a cultural strategy; and (3) socio-cultural. Socio-political strategies, with more emphasis on social needs to explain grain formalization of Islamic education in state institutions through formal legal businesses and the Muslim community educate themselves with Islamic morals and make Islam as a way of life. Cultural strategies designed to maturity of the personality of the students/the Muslims to expand their horizons, expand the scope of their commitment, deepen their awareness of the complexity of the human environment and strengthen solidarity with fellow human beings regardless of background political ideology, ethnicity, culture, and religion. While the culture of social strategy, trying to give birth to an institution that is not exclusive, but a public institution accepted by the entire community (Siradj, etall.1999).

In addition to some of the things revealed above, to give birth to the young people who are moderate and open depending on how far a person's depth of knowledge about his religion and history, and contexts that shape the environment. Because it is there are some people who tend to be taken for religious granted against religious teachings tend to use strategies and socio-political religious campaigning, and this is due to no other because of the ideology that he believed. There is even a group of people who deliberately transmit the rigid religious teachings, dogmatic and exclusive, so the character will find, are usually reluctant to encounter, interaction and dialogue with non-faith groups (the other). Attitudes exclusive and intolerant religious attitudes and gracefully like these, which often leads to conflicts and disputes between fellow human beings on earth including in our country.

Noting the various necessary qualification in the generation produces inclusive, it seems IBS has been prepared with various values and its culture, because IBS had been standing upright on the full value of the culture of peace and non-violence. Religious expression of IBS community, of course, very different from the handfull of narrow-minded Muslims and like a violent. Therefore, in addition to historical factors mentioned above-IBS in general is associated with the Sunni and Shafii schools. A stream of very moderate in the Islamic tradition. If there are IBS that tend to be radical and desirous of establishing an Islamic state in the Republic, it can be said that boarding schools in the category of what is called Martin with "fringe movement" (Bruinessen, 1992: 19), in the IBS community. For IBS with ideology of ahlussunah wa al-jama'ah and the most is nahdliyin in traditionalism and Muhammadiyah in Modernism, believes that the government is seen as a necessity to obey the same by other obligations, during the government does not advocate the paganisme. Therefore, in this type of IBS thoughtful is affected due to al-Mawardi, do not know the word "treason". According to Sunni scholars who lived during the Abbassid dynasty, that 60 years of living under a despotic government is better than anarchy one day (Muhtadi, 2004: 131). Moreover, in the perspective of the leading schools, maintain soil water law is mandatory. Naturally, if the colonial period, the famous kiai of IBS to be endorser of Diponegoro war (1825-1830) (Mas'ud, 2004: 70). Many kiai instruct the students to join the fight against the invaders. Therefore, for those who are familiar with the concept of some Shafii scholars such as al-Ghazali, who according to William Montgomery Watt (2002: 142), lived from 1058-1111 AD and al-Bajuri (scholars of the 18th century jurist ) (Mas'ud, 2004: 72), the same legal repel invaders with commanding the good and forbidding the evil. So the attitude of their resistance against the invaders is based a very logical reasons, not necessarily because of other reasons such as religious differences.

In addition, there are various kinds of seeds of democracy as the core of the humanist concept in IBS, such as; tradition that stresses discussion attitude recognizes the diversity of opinions (ta'addudiyah) and many kitab kuning in IBS that advocates a pluralist attitude like Fathul Mu'in. Moreover, at many IBS that have been introduced and reviewing a particular books of al-Fiqh based on al-Mazahib Arba'ah perspective and al-Wahid al-Jaziri's work (1986) which shows much diversity of opinion on the issue in the Sunni school of worship and muamalah. Even in the course of internal Shafii, according to Aqiel Siradj (1999: 198), some scholars of Shafii schools really demonstrated creativity, because they do not have to textually exactly like Imam Shafii. Even the scholars like Imam An-Nawawi, al-Raii, IbnHajar al- Haytami, Ar-Ramli, Zakariya al-Ansari, and others, have a variety of different opinions in communicate to and answering every issue.

CONCLUSION

Massive changes in all aspects of life as a result of modernization with all the positive and negative impacts now, automatically has dragged IBS institutions. IBS as one of the primogenital Islamic education system in Indonesia, consciously or unconsciously, together with the institutions/other educational institutions, has entered the large current called the globalization era. An era that demands new way to remain anchored in the characteristics and identity of each. All forms of innovation, creativity and intelligence are indispensable in this highly competitive era that still exist and are not left with the others. But digging and rediscover the values /culture that became his identity should always be done in order to remain strong from any "temptation".

Of course, the spirit of renaissance as it should always be discussed with the reality of the changes taking place. In short, an important step that needs to be IBS in doing reconstruction is universalization of Islamic values as a whole and systemic, it is a movement of paradigm shift, science, and IBS learning methods so that students remain in harmony and can contribute to the wider community. Relevant to this, IBS and the community/other institutions must be able to educate the younger generation, can sustain a values for unity, justice and success for the sake of a gracious life and better in the present or the future.

REFERENCE

--------------------- (2011). Indonesian Muslims and Their Place in the Larger World of Islam. Makalah dipresentasikan pada konferensi ke29 Indonesia, di Australia National University, Canbera.

Triyo Sapriyatno

Buku Asli Diterbitkan tahun 1999.